

Summary

Subject matter: The formation and functioning certainties of interjections in the Russian and French languages.

Author: Zaikina Victoriya.

Supervisor of studies: Khaperski Vladimir Nikolaevich.

Information about customer organization: Chair of linguistic.

Topicality of the research: The problem of interjection in modern French and Russian languages is connected with the ambiguity of their status in the language and with their originality of phonetic formation, semantic filling, grammatical form.

Objectives of the research: Revealing the certainties of interjections and defining the major communicative functions of interjections as special communicative units of languages to express human emotions and feelings.

Tasks of the research:

- 1) Defining linguistic status of interjections.
- 2) Studying of formal certainties of interjections.
- 3) Examining of semantics and syntactical functions of interjections.
- 4) Defining the role of interjections in the process of communicative situation

Recommendations: Method of linguistic description; comparative method in linguistics.