

Annotation

The topic of qualifying work: "The psychological consultation of children are in situation of bereavement"

The author: Nazaryan Nune Ashotovna, the student of psychology department of the Institute of human Nature Studies FGBOU VPO "Pyatigorsk State Linguistic University"

The instructor : Ph.d., professor of department of personality psychology and professional activity N.M. Shvaleva

Information about the customer-organization: FGBOU VPO "PGLU"
The relevancy of the research topic is due to the contradiction between the influence exerted by the experience of the situation of loss, on the one hand, and behavior of adolescents, on the other

The purpose of the work: experimental identification of the impact of the situation (states) bereavement at the development of the adolescent's personality

Tasks:

- to realize theoretical analysis of the literature concerning the period of grief.
- identify the impact of the psychological consultation on bereavement's situation where adolescent is.
- study experimentally the impact of the bereavement situations on personality development of adolescent.
- study experimentally the character traits of personality of the adolescent, psychological instability and anxiety in situations of bereavement.
- define the co-relation of influence between the situation of bereavement and the characteristic features of the individual adolescent.
- develop the psychological consultation's program directional at rehabilitating of the adolescent's personality is in situation of bereavement.
- trace the dynamics of changes in the personal performance of adolescents after the introduction of the program of psychological counseling.
- generalize the results of the exploring.

Object: adolescents, who are in a situation of bereavement.

Subject: features of organization counseling to children in situations of bereavement.

Hypothesis: the adolescents who are in a situation of loss, need timely psychological help, directional to work with trauma, to overcome stereotypes and patterns of behavioral reactions to bereavement significative object in the relationship of the inner world of the individual events, and reflexive levels of understanding of life events.

Theoretical and practical significance of the exploring

- analyzed the individual, group and situational features of experience of adolescents in a situation of loss, as well as the factors influencing on the experience of loss, namely: the strategies of coping and psychological protection of the personality, anxiety, depression, social isolation;

- fixed up the conditions for the optimization of psychological help to adolescents in coping with the experience of loss;

- developed and tested program of psychological assistance to adolescents shows that young people need psychological assistance and advice in the field of further support.

Results of the exploring

Backed up by the scientific and methodological basis argumentativeness theoretical positions; the adequacy of the methods and goals of the research; the combination of qualitative and quantitative analysis; using of statistical criteria, adequate hypotheses and characteristics of the sample; the consistency of the results with information of other researchers.

Recommendations:

Adolescents need to feel the pain and loss. He must, go through your thoughts and feelings, to think about himself and the time when it was good. Then – he must take himself and his pain, his emotions (positive and negative), its own any specific expectations. Do not rush himself at the same time. They must openly pour out their feelings, to cry. Tears in this situation bring relief and cure.