

Abstract

Graduation Level of Proficiency Paper (Bachelor's degree)

Subject matter: LINGUISTIC REFLECTION OF THE CONCEPT OF "TIME" IN SPANISH AND RUSSIAN LINGUOCULTURES

Author: Bukaeva Angira Olegovna

Supervisor of studies: Candidate of Philological Sciences, associate professor of spanish studies and intercultural communication I.A. Kobyakova

Research Initiator: Federal State Budget Educational Institution of Higher Professional Education "Pyatigorsk State University"

Topical Importance: V. A. Maslova, N. M. Firsova, A. Bello, E. Hall and others made a great contribution to the study of this topic and largely contributed to its further study. Language changes, which have been occurring everywhere for quite a long time, prove that now scientists are interested in language not only as a "thing in itself and for itself", but also study the language structures that make it possible to determine the full and deep content of the grammatical and semantic features of the basic units.

Goals: Complex analysis of the concept of time taking into account national and cultural specifics of the concept in russian and spanish languages.

Tasks: - define the definition of concept;

- determine the meaning of the concept of time;

- to reveal the role of the concept of time for russian and spanish cultures;

- to compare the reflection of the concept of time in spanish and russian linguocultures.

Theoretical value and practical applicability: The theoretical significance is that the study contributes to the study of the concept of time by comparing its perception and expression in two completely different cultures.

The practical significance of the work lies in the possibility of using its statements and conclusions in the courses of lectures on subjects affecting this topic, as well as in the translation process.

Implementation advice: This work can be used in courses of lectures on subjects affecting this topic, as well as in the translation process.