

Summary

Subject Matter: Telescoping and Kontaminant in the German lexicon

Author: student of the 8-th semester Gregoryan Veromka Romanovna

Supervisor: Professor Malinin Boris Alekseevich

Topicality of the research: the research of non-standard ways of word formation in the German speech.

The tasks of the research:

- to reveal the main extralinguistic conditions defining a choice of a form of education;
- to establish dependence of selection of a form of expression from this point of view speaking;

The theoretical significance of the research consists in, that its results promote creation of non-standard lexical units for the sphere of informal communication.

The practical significance of the research consists in opportunities of use of a material when developing courses on linguistics, stylistics, drawing up explanatory dictionaries.

The results of the research: investigating the German word formation, it was succeeded to reveal many educations in which the part of morphemic structure at a composition was reduced.