

Abstract

Graduation Level of Proficiency Paper

(Bachelor's degree)

Title: Functional-semantic field of intensity in English.

Author: Sharipov A.

Research Supervisor: Bondarenko E. I.

Information about the organization-customer: Pyatigorsk state linguistic university.

Topical Importance: This diploma is determined by the importance of intensity in the communication process and the increased interest to the study of morphology in categorical terms. The morphological structure of component values of speech and, in particular, the morphological units with a semantic indication of "intensity" in the English language are also remaining the focus of linguists.

Goals: The main objective of the work is to try to bring together all the different levels of intensity means of expression into a single semantic category, identify nuclear and peripheral components, and on this basis to build a functional-semantic field of intensity in the English language.

Tasks: on the base of the study of intensity in linguistics to set the size, boundaries and structural-semantic features of each of the subcategories within the General category of intensity; to determine the nature of the relationship and linkages between components of the field; to examine the role of the intensifiers in the actual structure of the proposal; to identify opportunities for combined use of several ways of expressing intensity in the text.

Theoretical value and practical applicability: The theoretical and practical importance of the work is: a special layer of morphology in English - intensifiers is emphasized; the status of the intensity as a separate category, which differs from the categories of quality evaluation of expressiveness is specified in the thesis.

Results: As shown by linguistic analysis, we concluded that the category of the intensity seen at all levels of language. The basis for the study was the morphological, lexical and syntactic levels. In each case, the content side, signaled some form, is a juxtaposition of the ordinary neutral, understood as a common measure of the amount.,The means of intensification of statements in the English language can be used in various combinatorial combinations. Their combined ratio to each other to express the concept graduality evidence on the legality of allocation semantic category "intensity."

Implementation advice: Since the test material is characterized by high importance of communication, the practical significance of the work is that the results of the research can be used in the practice of teaching English in practical exercises in style of the text, special courses on linguistics, emotive total semasiology and also in further investigations on the problem in question.