

Abstract
Graduation Level of Proficiency Paper
(Specialist's degree)

Title: The correlation of temporal and modal meanings of Future and Conditional tenses.

Author: Nagdaseva M. A.

Research Supervisor: Sitnov U. A.

Research Initiator: Mainova N. I.

Topical Importance: is determined by the insufficient readiness of the correlation of temporal and modal meanings of Future and Conditional tenses in Spanish.

Goals: to analyze comprehensively these verbal forms from the point of view of its structure, semantics, syntax and pragmatics and determine its usage in temporal and modal meanings.

Tasks: - to generalize the results of investigation;
- to determine its features in temporal and modal meanings;
- to determine its pragmatics orientation;
- to determine typical situations of its usage in speech;
- to work out the way of use of the results in practical teaching of international communication.

Theoretical value of the study consists of complex qualitative-quantitative characteristics which was identified by means of objective methods, temporal and modal meanings of these verbal forms were completely investigated.

Results: The verbal forms Future and Conditional are principal mean of expression of subjective modality in the modern Spanish language.