

SUMMARY

Scientific supervisor: associate Professor, PhD. D. S. Chekmenev, associate Professor of the Department of creative and innovative management and law

The Contracting authority: kcsong g. Pyatigorsk's

Relevance of the topic In modern socio-economic conditions an urgent problem in our country is the social support of children with disabilities in the educational and social life of society. According to statistics from the Ministry of health of the Russian Federation, at least 15 million people in Russia are disabled in 2019. Today, the most acute problem is social work with a family that has a child with disabilities. With an intensive growth in the number of children with disabilities, the urgency of the problem increases in equal proportions.

An effective means of rehabilitation of children with disabilities is the family - the most gentle type of social environment of the child. Therefore, among the socio-economic and demographic problems of modern Russian society, the problem of the life of families with children with disabilities stands out.

At the current transitional stage of development of Russian society, it is important to clarify the theoretical and practical foundations of the study of social policy of the state so that it has a conceptual character and correlates with the new liberal values. The economic relations that have developed during the transformation of the Russian economy have caused a change in the established patterns of socio-economic behavior of the country's population. The most vulnerable category was families raising disabled children.

In recent years, measures have been taken to improve the legal regulations governing the situation of children with disabilities, which has led to certain results. At the same time, social support for families raising disabled children is still not rational enough.

It is also important that social security does not take into account the indicators of differentiation and ranking of families by socio-demographic characteristics that determine their adaptive potential. As a result, a significant proportion of these families with children with disabilities with severe disabilities remain practically in economic and socio-cultural isolation. In this regard, the study of the problems of such families is relevant and requires additional thinking.

The purpose of the final qualification work is to study the features of social support for families raising a child with disabilities. The achievement of this goal predetermined the promotion and consistent solution of the following scientific and practical tasks:

- * study of the legal basis for social support for families raising a child with disabilities.

- * study of the specifics of families raising a child with disabilities.

- * identification of features of social support for families raising a child with disabilities.

- * description of experience in social support for families raising children with disabilities.

The object of the research is the system of social work with children with disabilities.

The subject of the study is the process of social support for families raising children with disabilities.

The main results of the study are expressed in the following statements: interest in the problem of social protection of children with disabilities, their social problems, as well as the difficulties faced by a family raising such a child, is constantly growing, which is confirmed by an increase in the number of studies, monographs, books, articles devoted to these topical issues around the world.

Recommendations. The analysis of practical aspects of the organization of social rehabilitation of children with disabilities on the basis of social organizations that do not directly specialize in such work, carried out in this final qualification work, showed that they are really able to increase the effectiveness of social rehabilitation. At the same time, it is obvious that their technological capabilities in this type of activity are objectively limited by the profile of their main activity. Thus, they implement social rehabilitation in its socio-cultural dimension.