

Subject matter: Concept of “Russia” in the French parliamentary discourse

Author: Kurashenko Igor

Supervisor of studies: a doctor of philology, a professor of the Chair of French philology and the intercultural communications, Alferov Alexandre

Information about customer organization: Chair of French philology and the intercultural communications, Pyatigorsk State University

Topicality of the research on revealing the structure and forms of realisation of “Russia” concept consists in the orientation for the topical contemporary linguistics directions – languacultural language modelling and conceptual research. The concept analysis allows revealing the pattern and the specificity of human exploitation of the world by language means.

Objective of the research: to describe the “Russia” concept structure in the parliamentary communication system of the French National Assembly

Tasks of the research:

1. Theoretical foundation of conceptual system: determination such notions as institutional communication and legalistic discourse
2. Analysis of mental representation as a part of parliamentary discourse
3. Integrating description of language means and ways of actualisation of «Russia» concept in the parliamentary communication system of the French National Assembly

The work carried out theoretical and practical importance lies in the fact that the problem under consideration has been solved in two different ways: by the use of both, Russian linguists' works and established methods of French parliamentarians' speech researches.

Result of the research: the analysis of “Russia” concept structure in the parliamentary communication system of the French National Assembly.

Recommendations: the work results can be considered as basis for the further parliamentary communication researches.