

Summary

Subject matter: Linguistics of the family communication in mixed marriages

Author: Vedzizheva Fatima Muradovna

Supervisor of studies: Potaenko N.A., Doctor of Philosophy

Information about customer organization: Department of French philology and intercultural communications.

Topicality of the research is conditioned by wide spread of the intercultural marriages and the necessity of studying of the communicative processes in mixed families, that makes possible to reveal and eliminate the communicative failures.

The objective of the research: comparative research of the peculiarities of the lexical units used in family communication in French and Ingush languages. Tasks of the research:

- 1) to define the thematic area of the intra-family communication;
- 2) to describe the area of the family relations and define the ways of conceptualization of this sphere in Ingush and French;
- 3) to make French and Ingush glossaries, connected thematically with intra-family relations and make their comparative analysis.

Theoretical and practical significance: the study of the forms of the language communication between the members of the family as well as other means of communication can help to solve effectively conflicts in the family.

Results of the research: Analysis of the thematically oriented discourse helped to understand the hidden mechanisms of intra- family communication in two different cultures.

Recommendations: this research may provide the ground for further researches of semantics and pragmatics of language units used in intra-family communication.