

Summary

Subject: Improving the effectiveness of local government in municipalities of a constituent entity of the Russian Federation as a strategic direction of modern public administration (based on materials from the Republic of Ingushetia)

Author: Aliev Islam Mukhamedovich

Scientific adviser: Candidate of Historical Sciences, Associate Professor Chekmenev D.S.

Relevance of the research topic. The significance of the activity of local authorities for the sustainable development of the municipality is due, on the one hand, to their “autonomy” in the regional government system, and on the other hand, to the role of the main link in the local government system, which is an important element in the system of government.

The purpose of the study is to summarize the theoretical and practical features of the process of assessing and improving the effectiveness of local government and the development of practical recommendations aimed at improving this type of management activity. \

The goal of the study determines the need to solve the following scientific and practical problems:

- summarize the main directions of development of local self-government in Russia in the context of strengthening federal relations.
- consider decentralization, democratization and efficiency as the main categories of reforming the public administration system in modern Russia.
- specify the social aspects of ensuring the effectiveness of local government.
- analyzed technological approaches to determining the effectiveness of managerial decisions in local governments.
- analyze the algorithm for evaluating the activities of local authorities.
- summarize the experience of monitoring the effectiveness of local government.
- specify the features of the formation and functioning of local authorities of municipalities of the Republic of Ingushetia.
- analyze the results of the evaluation of the activities of local authorities of municipalities of the Republic of Ingushetia.
- identify the main directions of increasing the efficiency of local government in the Republic of Ingushetia.

The hypothesis of the study: ensuring the efficiency of local government in municipalities is possible only as a result of coordinated political and managerial actions of public authorities of the corresponding constituent entity of the Russian Federation and local governments of municipalities that are part of it, and should be a strategic direction of modern public administration, since it depends on the degree of effectiveness of local self-government to solve a whole range of economic, political, social and managerial tasks facing the state and society in modern Russia.

Scientific novelty lies in the substantiation of a systemic mechanism for increasing the efficiency of local government in municipalities of a constituent entity of the Russian Federation, which is a strategic direction of modern public administration.

Key findings:

- the main directions of the development of local self-government in Russia in the context of strengthening federal relations were summarized in the work;
- the work examined decentralization, democratization, and efficiency as the main categories of reforming the public administration system in modern Russia;
- the social aspects of ensuring the effectiveness of local government were specified in the work;
- The work analyzed technological approaches to determining the effectiveness of managerial decisions in local governments.
- The work analyzed the algorithm for assessing the activities of local authorities.
- The work summarized the experience of monitoring the effectiveness of local government.

Recommendations

1. It is necessary to identify best practices in the organization of local self-government within the Russian Federation and to disseminate it.
2. It seems that the role of the state in the development of local self-government as a whole should increase.
3. It is necessary to move from a policy of state support to local self-government (as a political institution) to state policy in relation to municipalities.
4. It is also important to ensure the formation of mechanisms for the interaction of two power systems (state and local).
5. As the most potentially effective and implemented measure, we propose the deepening and expansion of inter-municipal cooperation as a way to increase the efficiency of local government.